VOLUME 27, NO. 38

WEST LIBERTY, MORGAN COUNTY, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, APRIL 22, 1937

WHOLE NUMBER 1384

For REPRESENTATIVE

C. C. MAY

On the 10th of April, 1937, C. C. May, of West Liberty, was announced as the representative from the 10th legislative district in August.

Mr. May is no novice in the position he seeks to fill, having served his county in that capacity in the legislature in 1922, in 1928, and in 1934. In the sessions of 1923 and 1934 he served on the committee on rules, which is the most important of all the committees. He is a practicing attorney, a school teacher, and an exemplary citizen.

The section of the county where Mr. May hails from is always safely Democratic and usually a decisive factor in elections.

Mr. May knows Morgan county better than most men and has a sympathetic interest in every corner of it. No man in the county is more sympathetic and more intelligently in touch with the public school affairs of the state and county than Mr. May.

Mr. May understands the business relationship between the county and the state. He understands the dire needs of counties for assistance from the state in their fiscal affairs. It will be Mr. May's ambition to make democracy work for Kentucky and Morgan county.

If nominated and elected Mr. May will serve the county faithfully and well.

AWAITING PLANS

Louisville, Ky., April 14, 1937.
F. S. Brong,
West Liberty, Ky.
Dear Mr. Brong:

This will acknowledge your letter of April 10 concerning the West Liberty water works project. I have checked this project with our operations division and the following is quoted from a memorandum from Mr. A. J. Hermes, assistant director, in this connection:

"With reference to the attached letter from Mr. F. S. Brong concerning Morgan County project 5-88-562 for the construction of a waterworks system in West Liberty, will advise that the project has all necessary Washington approval. Final approval by this office and the assignment of a work project is being withheld pending receipt of plans detailing the proposed work and the approval of these plans by Mr. F. C. Dugan of the state board of health.

On March 5 this office notified Mr. Gamble in Paintsville that the above material was necessary and no doubt Mr. Gamble has forwarded this request to the city authorities in West Liberty."

Hoping that it will be possible to get the project under way in the very near future, I am
Yours truly,
GEO. H. GOODMAN,
Works Progress Administrator

CHEVROLET STEALS THE SHOW

That is what happened on the motor car stage this year.

The 1937 Chevrolet is competing and taking the place of much higher priced cars with more buyers than ever before. Production is running more than 30 days behind the sales.

If you are planning to buy a new car this year, won't you come in and place your order now, so that we can get it in the model and color you like? The complete car completely new. Try to get one.

Society As Is

A poor little kid sitting on the lonesome doorstep of a poor home doesn't get much attention from society. But a problem boy or girl sent to a reform school gets attention. Once something was said about prevention being better than cure, which we suspect still holds.

HARD TO PLEASE

An editor and a merchant were discussing the virtues of billboard and newspaper advertising. The merchant maintained that more people read billboards than newspapers.

A week later the merchant came tearing into the newspaper office to learn why his wife's mother's obituary had not appeared in the paper, especially after he wrote it out and brought it in himself.

"I knew you wanted it read by the people," said the editor, "so I took it out and nailed it to one of your billboards."—Sedan (Kans.) Journal.

THE CENTERVILLE CHURCH

There is a place across the hill. Known to us as Centerville. It is there the church we see. Built by friends of you and me.

We find welcome and to spare When we go to worship there: No formality, but religion true, Worshipping now as they always do.

The prayers ascend the heavens' hill; The songs our hearts with rapture thrill; The lessons read by the pastor brave Teach us how our soul to save.

Other preachers follow in the stand, Making us think of the heavenly land, Sainly shouts their echoes roll Which go flowing from soul to soul.

The closing song with the old hand-shake, A token of love, which we all partake, And mingling of voices at the close Denotes everybody's welcome, as he knows.

We thank our God Who so graciously sends Visiting pastors and sainted friends, Watered by Christ, this church will shine When members at His table dine.

The gates, they are founded on a rock, The keys of hell can ne'er unlock; Then when God comes the second time, May this dear church arise and shine.

As a bride adorned in spotless white, Clothed in righteousness, power and might, Worshipping there across the hill Known to us as Centerville.

Wednesday an X-ray was taken which showed one bone broken and one out of place. The broken bone had started to knit and had to be rebroken, then properly set. Mrs. Manning is now resting easier.

THE COWBOY

Within the last few years, since the radio has assumed the role of one of the necessities in the average home, the cowboy has staged a comeback comparable with his revival a few years earlier in the movies. The actual cowboy as an institution started down hill many years ago, with the passing of free land and the making of fences on the plains. In his own time he acquired a picturesque quality that was not wholly due to his being such a prominent feature of the wild west circus. By the time he became a part of the circus he was already known far and wide, a quaint character who represented to thousands the very essence of romance. Cowboy songs, like "Oh Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie," were known quite as well east of the Mississippi as in actual cowboy country. Travelers to the west brought back Texas saddles, long cowhorns, and romantic stories of cowboy life. The ballad singers and fiddlers lent their aid in making the cowboy a part of our folk music. There has probably not been a single year since the opening of the west when it would not have been possible to see a sombrero at any typical county court gathering in Kentucky and neighboring states. Even the smallest boys of my childhood had to have a Texas saddle.

During the heyday of the circus and the early forms of moving pictures the cowboy was effective chiefly as a picture, still or moving. The radio and the talking pictures have brought again the cowboy song, long known and loved by plain people before these inventions were made. Actual cowboy songs appear on many programs: "Roll On, Little Dogies," "Whoopee ti yi yo, Get Along Little Dogies," and the like. Very rapidly there have grown up other songs based on these genuine cowboy ballads, so that it is already pretty hard to tell the one from the other. The way in which a cowboy song is given makes it effective or not; a too melodious rendition, as if it were an extract from grand opera, is too much. There should be enough freedom in a cowboy song to suggest, at least, something of the crude but genuine music of the cowhands. By a process of selection and combination a modern musician has brought much of the spirit of cowboy songs into "I'm Heading for the Last Roundup." A casual turning thru Dr. John A. Lomax's "Cowboy Songs and Ballads," a collection of genuine songs made by the author some thirty years ago, will show that this now popular song echoes three well known cowboy classics: "Goodbye, Old Paint, I'm Leaving Cheyenne," "Get Along Little Dogies," and "The Great Roundup."

The cowboy yells or wails, resembling the "hollers" of the Negroes, appear in many of the actual and artificial songs.

The actual and the literary cowboy have become so confused that it is difficult to distinguish them. Owen Wister's Virginian and Theodore Roosevelt are equally valid cowboys. Will Rogers for many years combined the achievements of the cowboy and the rustic philosopher and was about as typical a product of the frontier as anyone can imagine. How long the cowboy will outlast the range there is no way of knowing, but right now he is one of our best known and best liked folk types and is acquiring permanence in song and story.—Kentucky Folklore Series.

MISSIONARY BROADCAST
Friday afternoon at 6:30 all members of the Methodist church are urged to attend in the basement of the church a supper and radio broadcast. This supper and broadcast are given in every M. E. church in commemoration of the 89th anniversary of their first missionaries sent to the Orient. It is expected that each church will take an offering to apply on the missionary debt, which has been incurred during the depression.

Each church has installed a radio and the same program will be heard. Speakers are Bishop Arthur Moore and Bishop Frank Smith. The music is furnished by the choir of Scarratt college, Nashville, Tenn.

Cleanup Day
Wish was recently expressed by an eastern banker for opportunity to run a newspaper for a day. After thinking it over we believe we would be willing to permit that if he permits us to run the bank the day he is running the newspaper. Just don't believe he could do any more to the newspaper than we could do to the bank.—Keen Johnson in Richmond Register.

Horse Sense
We used to work a three horse team on a riding plow, but never had one of 'em try to get back on the driver's seat.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sebastian and son Don, who went to Dallas, Texas, April 1 to attend a life insurance convention in Mexico City, are spending a month motoring thru the south. They write home folks that their health is good and that they expect to reach Mexico City on Saturday.

For COUNTY ATTORNEY

REN F. NICKELL

In our regular announcement column this week will be the bid of Ren F. Nickell for reelection to the position of county attorney, which he now fills.

Mr. Nickell has served in this capacity, knows the requirements of the office, and feels that he can continue to give satisfactory if nominated and reelected.

Mr. Nickell is well known all over the county, has an extensive relationship, and expects to make an active canvass for the position. He respectfully solicits your support, confident that he will be permitted to continue to serve the citizens of the county in this important office.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

The following friends and playmates gathered at the home of Anna Ruth Lykins, daughter of Mrs. J. D. Lykins, in honor of her twelfth birthday: Janis Arnett, Evelyn Rose, Helen Fay Sebastian, Pauline Blair, Charline Rose, Jenalee Moore, Harold Bellamy, Betty Jean Nickell, Anna Jean Price, Geraldine Caskey, Anna Ruth May, Lovel M. Brong, Jerry Nell Rose, Johnny Rose, Billy Nell May, Margaret Ann Adkins, Bety Jo Whitt, Anna Ruth Craft, Joyce K. Howard, and Patty Bellamy.

After a jolly time playing games on the lawn, Mrs. Lykins took the birthday cake with candles down to the restaurant and seated the entire party at little tables and treated them to cake and ice cream.

EXPANDING BUSINESS

The Sandy Valley Grocery Co., of which H. H. Wheeler of Paintsville is the head, is composed of a large number of affiliated, more or less independently organized, concerns. Two new companies, the Morehead Grocery Co. at Morehead and the Huntington Grocery Co. at Huntington, West Virginia, have just been announced. Oscar Arnett of Caney, affiliated with the company in the capacity of stock salesman, is now promoting a company at Portsmouth, Ohio, and selling stock with which to launch this new branch.

How to Trench Soil.

Too much can not be said about the proper preparation of our garden soils before planting for half the work of cultivation can often be saved by having the garden properly ploughed or spaded before we start planting. We hear gardeners talk about the physical condition of garden soils, physical condition being the fineness of the soil, the absence of lumps, the ease with which it can be worked early in the spring, freedom from crusting or baking after a rain, and the way it absorbs moisture. The custom often followed by Old World gardeners of spading their gardens two lengths of the spade in depth is a good one. Digging two "spits" deep they call it. This method of preparing the soil gives a double deck garden, two gardens, one right on top of the other and a chance for the roots of the plants to go deep for their food and moisture when the surface supply becomes exhausted.

You will get more plants if you sow seed in carefully prepared boxes or pots than in the open ground. Weather will take its toll, particularly hard rains.

Soil for seedlings need not be rich. The food is needed after the seeds have germinated and plants are in permanent quarters.

Frequent cultivation has a fertilizing value. It lets air into the soil and makes plant food available.

Transplant seedlings as soon as they have two or three true leaves.

Advertisers must satisfy to succeed.

DEEP SPADING GIVES GARDEN FINE START

It Produces Fine Tilt and Retains Moisture.

Wagner Act Upheld by the Supreme Court

FIVE history-making decisions were handed down by the Supreme court, all upholding the validity of the Wagner labor relations act and inferentially broadening the interstate commerce clause of the Constitution. The most important ruling made by five of the nine justices and read by Chief Justice Hughes, was in the case of the Jones & Laughlin Steel company and directed the reinstatement of ten discharged employees. The decision supported the constitutional basis of the Wagner act, finding it a legal "scheme" to protect commerce from injury resulting from the denial by employers of the right of employees to organize and "from the refusal of employers to accept the procedure of collective bargaining."

The broad constitutionality of the act, was strongly noted by the chief justice. He declared that: "We think it clear that the national labor relations act may be construed so as to operate within the spirit of constitutional authority."

Hughes defined the right of employees to self-organization and to select their representatives for collective bargaining as "a fundamental right."

Regarding the vital point of the application of the interstate commerce clause of the Constitution, Hughes declared:

"The congressional authority to protect interstate commerce from burdens and obstructions is not limited to transactions which can be deemed to be an essential part of a 'flow' of interstate or foreign commerce. Burdens or obstructions may be due to injurious action springing from other sources."

In the case of the Associated Press, concerning the dismissal of Morris Watson, a New York editorial employee, the court was split, 5 to 4. The majority opinion, read by Justice Roberts, held that the act does not "abridge the freedom of speech or of the press safe-guarded by the first amendment" to the Constitution. The court took the view that Watson was dismissed not because his work was unsatisfactory but because of his activities in the Newspaper Guild, and ordered his reinstatement.

Dissenting conservatives, comprising Justices Willis Van Devanter, George Sutherland, James C. McReynolds and Pierce Butler, contended that the act should not be applied to the Associated Press because its provisions violated the "freedom of the press" clause of the Constitution. They found that if the act interfered with the ability of the Associated Press to maintain a policy of impartial news reporting, it must fall under the freedom of the press guaranty.

The three other cases, in each of which the Wagner act was upheld, involved dismissal of 18 employees by an interstate bus company; a dispute between the Fruehauf Trailer Company of Detroit, Mich., and the United Automobile Workers Union; and a dispute between the Friedmann-Harry Marks Clothing Company of Richmond Va., and Amalgamated Clothing Workers. In the bus case the decision was unanimous; in the others the division was 5 to 4.

Canada Motors Strike on Verge of Settlement

MITCHELL HEPBURN, premier of Ontario, reiterating his determination not to permit C. I. O. representatives from the United States to take part in negotiations for settlement of the strike in the General Motors of Canada plant at Oshawa, promised to "call out an army if necessary" to protect the property of the corporation.

Hugh Thompson, U. A. W. A. organizer, barred by Hepburn, threatened that every General Motors plant in America would be closed unless the Oshawa strike were settled soon with recognition of the union demands. Homer Martin, president of the U. A. W. A., called Hepburn a number of unpleasant names. The Toronto Trades and Labor Council pledged the support of its 40,000 members to the union's strike against General Motors.

Notwithstanding all this, it appeared likely at this writing that the trouble at Oshawa would be brought to an end very soon by the agreement of General Motors of Canada to recognize the United Automobile Workers and to increase the wages of its employees. To some unbiased observers it seemed that Premier Hepburn had intervened in the affair unnecessarily or at least prematurely, and that his blustering language was not warranted, since the strike was being conducted in a fairly orderly manner with no threat of a shutdown.

C. I. O. Men Shoot Several Foes in Galena, Kan.

ORGANIZERS of the International Union of Mill, Mine and Smelter Workers, an affiliate of the C. I. O., invaded the lead and zinc field of Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri and were forcibly resisted by the "blue carders" of the Tri-State Metal Mine and Smelter Workers' union, which the C. I. O. says is a company union. The latter dismantled the C. I. O. offices at Picher and Trece and then moved into Galena, Kan., where they paraded. As they reached the C. I. O. headquarters one of the marchers smashed a window. There was a burst of gunfire from the building and at least eight men and one lad fell wounded.

Leaders of the blue card union say nearly every miner in the region belongs to it, that they are drawing higher pay than ever before and are interested only in keeping conditions as they are and in an opportunity to work.

The C. I. O. has started a campaign to organize the 270,000 employees of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the largest corporation in the United States. Local unions are to be chartered by the United Electrical and Radio Workers of America. Promotional literature is being distributed.

Prime Minister Baldwin Will Soon Quit Office

FREQUENT reports that Stanley Baldwin would soon retire from the post of prime minister of Great Britain were confirmed by him in a speech to the members of his constituency at Worcester. It is expected he will quit office almost immediately after the coronation of King George VI on May 12, and there seems little doubt that his successor will be Neville Chamberlain, now chancellor of the exchequer.

In his Worcester address Mr. Baldwin said: "It is far better to go when people may still think of you as perhaps not incompetent than to stay until they know before you that you are becoming incompetent."

"In a democratic country the prime minister is not only the head of a government, but he is the leader of a party and the leader of the house of commons. To carry on that tripartite task for many years beyond the age I have now reached is, in my belief, beyond the strength of human nature."

The prime minister's long service to his country will be rewarded by elevation to the peerage.

British Navy Ordered to Protect Merchant Ships

GREAT BRITAIN will respect the blockade of the northern Spanish port of Bilbao established by General Franco, Fascist leader. But her navy has been given orders by the cabinet to protect to the fullest extent all British shipping outside the three mile limit.

The huge battle cruiser Hood and other warships were sent in a hurry to the Bay of Biscay, and orders were given to open fire on any Spanish vessel interfering with British cargo ships on the high seas. The cabinet, it was said, decided to continue to withhold the granting of belligerent rights to Franco but regarded the blockade of Bilbao as a special case since Franco's forces surround the town by sea and land. Six British ships had been waiting at St. Jean de Luz and one at Bayonne, unable to land food cargoes at Bilbao because of the presence of Franco's warships.

Farmers Must Pay More to Raise 1937 Crops

ACCORDING to the Department of Agriculture American farmers will have to pay more to raise their crops in 1937 than they did last year. Farm labor will cost more. Seed prices already have advanced sharply, and feed prices will be materially higher than in 1936. The department said farm wage rates will continue the "slow rise of the last three years" due to an increase in both the nonagricultural and agricultural demand for labor.

The department forecast that "production and sales of farm machinery during 1937 probably will exceed those of 1936—which were the highest since 1920—and equal the 1925-29 average, especially if crop conditions are more nearly normal."

Fertilizer sales and prices, it was said, probably will average "somewhat higher" than in 1936.

Drive Against Communism Started by the K. of C.

IT IS the opinion of the Knights of Columbus that communism is responsible for sitdown and other strikes in the United States and Canada, and that national organization of 600,000 Catholic men therefore has started an "endless crusade" against what it terms "the most damnable organization in the world." The program was launched officially by 400 delegates of councils in the New York district and will be carried on all over the country.

Fascism Is Defeated in Belgian Election

BELGIAN Fascists were badly defeated in an election which was admittedly a show of Fascist and anti-Fascist strength though it was only for one seat in parliament. The voters flatly rejected Leon Degrelle, the former Premier Paul Van Zeeland, the former obtaining only 69,242 votes as against 275,840 for Van Zeeland. The Fascists there are known as the "Flemish nationalists" and were backed by the Flemish nationalists.

Senate Hits Sitdowns but Sparing the President

IN ORDER to get the Guffey coal control bill through the senate without an amendment condemning the sitdown strike, Majority Leader Joe Robinson promised to permit consideration of a resolution carrying similar condemnation, but when it was presented and adopted, by a vote of 75 to 3, it was not a joint resolution, which would require the signature of the President. That was what Senator McNary and others wanted, but Robinson said it must be concurrent, because he would not put Mr. Roosevelt in the position of having to indicate his position on the sitdown strike by either signing or vetoing the measure.

Besides declaring the sitdown strike "illegal and contrary to sound public policy" the resolution as adopted took a double slap at the employers by also declaring: "That the so-called industrial spy system breeds fear, suspicion and animosity, tends to cause strikes and industrial warfare and is contrary to sound public policy; and that it is likewise contrary to sound public policy for any employer to deny the right of collective bargaining, to foster the company union or to engage in any other unfair labor practice as defined in the national labor relations act."

Head men in the administration feel that a large part of the ill feeling in congress among representatives of various sugar interests has been fomented by strong sugar-refining lobbies. American sugar manufacturers, it is claimed (and the President is said to share this belief) have aroused an antagonism against Puerto Rico and Hawaii, which are looked upon by our government as a part of the American area under the stars and stripes. What the refiners and continental producers would like is a quota reducing the amount of sugar to come from Hawaii and Puerto Rico. The administration does not favor this reduction and the matter is being fought out in congressional committees—and it will be in the open soon.

Entering our twenty-first year after our declaration of war against Germany April 6, 1917, we recall President Wilson's dramatic appeal for arms "to make the world safe for democracy," and find that democracy seems to be concentrated in France, England, and a few minor Scandinavian countries, the United States—and South American governments which are democratic in name at least. The diplomatic effort of most of these countries is to cement an agreement which will bind us all together in case of a war in which democracy will be under fire again—from Fascism or Communism.

England and France are apparently building up some sort of a foundation on which they will be able to ask for credit or aid of some sort in the event they need it for war purposes. The constant procession of their best statesmen and diplomats over here has nothing else but that as an objective.

Our present law prevents the outright loan of money to any country which has not made a "satisfactory" arrangement as to its war debts. This word "satisfactory" is the key to the whole business—anything our government says is "satisfactory" is legally an open door to more credit. We may sometime say that a mere token payment of a few dollars is a "satisfactory" settlement; and let England and France in again to use our goods and credit to help stave off the war which we presume will engulf Europe.

Italian Editor Accuses France and Russia

THAT France and Russia are flagrantly violating the Spanish civil war neutrality agreement by sending aid to the Madrid government is the charge flatly made by Virginio Gayda, Italian editor who is generally regarded as voicing the views of Premier Mussolini. Gayda said 25 officers of the French general staff were mapping the strategy of the loyalists especially on the front northeast of Madrid, and that transshipment had been permitted through France of much war material made in the United States. He alleged that Edouard Daladier, French minister of war, is receiving reports on the performance of the new 155 millimeter (6.1 inch) French guns sent to Spain and used extensively in the Guadajajara battle.

The Spanish steamer Mar Negro, Gayda declared, was en route to Valencia from Odessa, Russia, with a cargo of munitions of war for the Spanish government.

Too Much Sugar Irks Congress

Frets Over Necessity of Limiting Output; Navy Second to None Is Government Plan

By EARL GODWIN

WASHINGTON. — Too much sugar! Too much sugar in the cane brakes and in the sugar beet areas; too much sugar produced in Java as well as in Cuba. New Orleans fighting against Denver—because sugar is a mainstay in each of these widely separated cities—and the whole business is concentrated at Washington where congress is now fretting over the necessity to establish limits on sugar production and importation and at the same time subsidize our domestic sugar cane and sugar beet growers.

President Roosevelt has sent a message to congress suggesting the necessity for new sugar quotas; it looks to me that as a result of his efforts to make everyone happy someone will have to be stung, and this year I think the sugar refiners are elected for that disappointment. Their hope is for a clear field—but I'll miss my guess if they don't have to suffer the competition of sugar from some of our wards and neighbors—Puerto Rico and Hawaii especially.

Congressmen and senators from beet and cane areas are waiting almost with clubs to repel the first sign of increased shipments from the various islands I mentioned—and yet those islands need sugar prosperity and need it badly. The Department of Agriculture has planned to put Hawaii and Puerto Rico on about the same level as our own domestic sugar. That permits raw sugar from those islands to compete with continental United States sugar—and what a row that is making in congress. Also, there's a word of caution from the Philippines. The wily Japanese are trying to see whether we rebuff the Philippine sugar business. If so, Japan will open the door wide for Philippine sugar, sugar cane, molasses and so forth. Then the Japs would have a fine opportunity to make friends with the new Philippine commonwealth on commercial terms.

Head men in the administration feel that a large part of the ill feeling in congress among representatives of various sugar interests has been fomented by strong sugar-refining lobbies. American sugar manufacturers, it is claimed (and the President is said to share this belief) have aroused an antagonism against Puerto Rico and Hawaii, which are looked upon by our government as a part of the American area under the stars and stripes. Our present law prevents the outright loan of money to any country which has not made a "satisfactory" arrangement as to its war debts. This word "satisfactory" is the key to the whole business—anything our government says is "satisfactory" is legally an open door to more credit. We may sometime say that a mere token payment of a few dollars is a "satisfactory" settlement; and let England and France in again to use our goods and credit to help stave off the war which we presume will engulf Europe.

the sincere desire of this government is to maintain peace throughout the world. To the average peace-lover who does not believe in navies, all that can be said is that there is a difference of opinion as to the best means of guaranteeing peace.

Again, we are building on the idea of a "navy second to none," and if we are to have a navy, there is no use in having one that can be licked. As they say here "a second best navy is no better than a second best poker hand when called." And so, with reluctance, this summer we start building two battle-ships, the cost of which is now placed at $60,000,000 apiece. Already building or scheduled are 85 other war vessels. Three great ships to carry huge flocks of airplanes on smooth flat decks; 11 cruisers; 54 destroyers and 17 submarines. (Nine German submarines kept the world in terror during the World war.) . . . Naval experts believe we can in five years rebuild our navy to adequate strength to protect our 21,000 mile coast line.

Hundreds of millions of dollars of the naval appropriation goes to the steel business, which now soars to 1929 figures—the best ever. With the navy buying, and with Great Britain and business buying steel again, no wonder the steel magnates are willing to increase wages. Yet their increased pay does not justify, the President thinks, the boost in the price of steel—an increase of about $6 a ton. But there is a huge boost in all the heavy goods industries, especially steel, and if there is too much bridge and building construction there is danger of another cessation in the immediate use of these products—and a consequent depression by reason of the lay-offs of labor.

Hence the government pipes down on heavy public works and determines that whatever relief work there is for the unemployed shall be largely labor. Building earthen dykes and dams in rural sections is a good example—most of that expense is payroll costs that immediately goes into the storekeeper for food and clothing. That kind of money keeps the "consumer goods" business rolling. The factories which supply our daily needs are stimulated and maintained through that sort of spending. This change of policy is going to cause many a heartache. More than three thousand public buildings, dams, power plants, etc., have been planned and pleaded for by the authorities of every county—but the chances are that for months to come there will be more channel dredging and dyke and dam building than schoolhouse construction with the public money from Washington.

We hear a lot of loose talk and read a lot of frenzied and emotional writing about Roosevelt becoming a "dictator," but he's a long way from dictatorship. In fact, the latest political maneuver was a slap in Roosevelt's face by congress in which some of our truculent opposition speakers and editors refer to constantly as "the rubber stamp body." No sooner had Roosevelt sent congress a message on the subject of a reorganized and efficient government set-up managed by government employees chosen for merit, than congress set to work to frame a new government body devoid of up-to-date civil service principles, but offering a wide open pork barrel to the hungry politicians. In other words, the President asked congress to quit being merely political and do something constructive, and congress answers by going as far into the political muck as any spoilsman outfit of the old days.

The Guffey bill, just passed, establishes a new NRA for the bituminous coal business, and probably will smooth out the chaotic condition in that much distressed industry. There is need for such a stabilizer, but it will be administered at the price of merit in federal government. In the first place Joe Guffey, United States senator from Pennsylvania, saw to it that the head of this stabilizing process would be a body of eight men instead of merely one administrator. The eight are to draw ten thousand dollars a year apiece. That is nearly as many members as there are in the President's cabinet of ten, who run the regular federal government and are paid only $15,000 apiece.

Eight men at $10,000 apiece is a splendid bit of political pie right now; and the rest of the personnel is almost unbelievable in the face of the President's vigorous plea to improve the government by civil service and merit methods. There will be about ten thousand employees needed for this coal commission; probably one half of whom will be clerks, stenographers, typists, etc. The rest will be "special agents" and so called "field men" and "attorneys" without end. The bill does not limit the number. They are not subject to civil service or any other test of merit—simply an army of undeserving voters picked for their stalwart support of the prevailing United States senator or member of congress.

Canberra Property Leased

In Canberra, new capital of Australia, land cannot be owned by individuals, but may be leased from the government for 99 years.

what Irvin Cobb thinks about:

California Condors.
SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—Local naturalists are all agog over the discovery that the California condor is coming back in numbers to his former haunts just up country from here. In fact, they are going out of one violent gog right into another. Because the condor, the mightiest winged creature in all North America, was supposed to be practically extinct, along with such vanished species of native wild life as the great auk, the passenger pigeon and the lightning rod agent.

So now we have set up a new mark for envious Florida to shoot at. For while they may have crouched at Bradley's in Palm Beach, with eyes as keen and bleak as the condor's are, and real-estate dealers in Miami as greedy as he is, our frustrated rivals will be put to it to dig up a bird with a wing spread of from nine to eleven feet.

Communism's Gallant Foe.
HARDLY a day passes but we read in the paper of an account of individual heroism, of sacrifice, of devotion to duty—something which renews our faith in human beings and makes us realize that scattered through the world are splendid souls of whom we never heard before and probably shall never hear again. When the emergency came he rose to it—and that's enough.

But because, in the last few months, we've learned to expect it of him, I'm thinking many of us fail to appreciate a recurrent act of gallant service by one venerable, enfeebled man whose name is familiar to all Christendom. From time to time, triumphing by sheer will power, by sheer singleness of purpose above his own suffering, Pope Pius XI, speaking from what soon must be his deathbed, sends forth a clarion call for a united front against the growing menace of communism.

Waning Merchant Marines.
AFTER we've spent billions in government subsidies trying to build up a proper merchant fleet of our own, it's just a trifle disconcerting to read that, among the six nations leading in maritime shipping, the United States still ranks third in gross tonnage, fifth in ships having a speed of twelve knots or better, and last in ships built within the last ten years.

But, although Los Angeles is a great port, we have no time right now to pester about a comparatively trivial thing such as the threatened vanishing of the American flag from the seven seas—not while we're still so uncertain about who will have the leading parts in "Gone With the Wind." To date, nearly every lady in the movie colony has been suggested for Scarlett O'Hara except Mae West and Jane Withers, and as for Rhett Butler—well, it may yet be necessary to cast that role as a whole minstrel first part, with an interlocutor and six end men.

Italians in Spain.
IT MUST be slightly annoying to those Italian soldiers who were flung headlong upon Spain to fight in a war in which they had no personal interest, when, through mistake, they are mown down in hundreds by their own troops, and then the bewildered remnants find themselves in the hands of the opposing government forces, who have a reputation for sometimes being a trifle rough with prisoners whom they capture.

Still, it must be a great comfort to the confused captives—and to the relatives of the fallen back home as well—to have assurance from Mussolini that they are winning the way for fascist doctrines. Until they heard that cheering message, those battered survivors probably thought that they had been licked.

The Height of Gall.
A S J. CAESAR remarked at the time, all Gaul was once divided in three parts, but it is obvious that subsequently there was a complete re-consolidation.

When France, already in default to us on one little four-billion debt, starts scheming to peddle her newest issue of government securities over here, that must indeed be regarded as the height of gallishness or Gaulishness—spell it either way, reader, it'll come out the same. Moreover, to evade the Johnson act, she would have American investors send the money to Paris and buy these French bonds there. This sort of smacks of inviting Br'r Rabbit to come into camp to be massacred, instead of hunting him down with the dogs.

Storms and Hurricanes Are Nemesis of Mr. Purcell

Henry M. Purcell doesn't like storms. Three times in the last ten years he has been their victim. He went through the Miami, Fla., hurricane in 1926, moved to Palm Beach afterwards, but was caught in the "big blow" of 1928. Then he moved to Montgomery, Ala., but the storm which struck there recently wrecked his garage and blew it down on his car. He is undecided where to go next.

THE OBEDIENCE OF NOAH

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 9:20-22; 9:8-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—By faith Noah, being warned of God concerning things not seen as yet, moved with godly fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house. Heb. 11:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Meaning of the Rainbow.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Rainbow's Message.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Following God's Plan.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Deliverance through Obedience.

The "book of beginnings" (Genesis) has already brought before us the creation of the world, the origin of man, the entrance of sin into the world, and God's judgment upon that sin. In chapter 4 we find the first murder. Cain, who brought an offering before God which was not acceptable, murdered his brother Abel, whose offering pleased God. Strange as it may seem, man has in his heart to hate those who expose his sin by their godly life.

God does not leave himself without a witness in the earth. The God-fearing line of Seth appears. There are always those who have not bowed the knee to the Adversary. Consider the astonishment of Soviet officials at the deep-seated and wide-spread faith in God revealed in their recent census.

But sin again lifts its ugly head and ere long God is driven to the necessity of judgment upon mankind. Read the terrific indictment of humanity in Genesis 6:5-7. It is still true that the heart of man is "deceitfully wicked" (Jer. 17:9). Well does a contemporary writer say that even modern "psychology has unveiled the dismal and sinister depths in human nature. Man can no longer flee from reality into the romantic refuge of his own heart; for the human heart has become a house of horrors in whose murky recesses man cannot erect for his solace either a shrine or a citadel. Man is bad; he is a sinner. The depths of his meanness are being unveiled in a ghastly way in individual and social life in these times. What a contemporary ring there is about these old biblical judgments on mankind! (Gen. 6:5, 6; Isa. 1:6.) What a tremendous arraignment of sinful human nature is Paul's prologue in Romans 1" (MacKay).

So God sent a flood upon the earth. It used to be fashionable to doubt the story of the flood, but archaeology has joined hands with geology and history to agree with Scripture. The facts are available; let us use them.

"But Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord" and prepared an ark at God's command. Here again it can be demonstrated that the ark was sufficiently large to meet the need of Noah and all his family, with the animals and their food, and with room to spare. It is significant that the proportions of the ark were those of a well-planned boat. God knows how to build, and man does well to obey his instructions.

The rain came, the fountains of the deep were opened, and all the living perished, except those within the ark. What an instructive type of our safety in Christ is the ark! But our lesson concerns primarily what occurred after Noah came forth from the ark and presented himself before God.

I. An Obedient Man (8:20-22). To come before God with acceptable worship, man must come with clean hands. The question is not whether he is brilliant, learned, or of high position. The one thing that counts is obedience. When such a man offers the worship of his heart before God, it goes up to him like a sweet savor.

II. A Covenant-Keeping God (9:8-17). The beautiful rainbow in the cloud became a token of God's promise, and the visible assurance to "all flesh" that the judgment of the flood will not be repeated. Never again will seed time and harvest, nor any of the orderly processes of nature, fail throughout the whole earth.

What a pity that men presume upon his goodness. Because he "maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust" (Matt. 5:45), men not only forget that he is the giver of all things, but assume that they may sin against him with impunity. Let us remind them that it is the clear teaching of Scripture that "every one of us shall give account of himself to God" (Rom. 14:12).

Well Spent Days
Oh, what a glory doth this world put on, for him who with a fervent heart goes forth under the bright and glorious sky, and looks on duties well performed, and days well spent.—Longfellow.

Purity of Heart
A holy life is the very gate of heaven; but let us always remember that holiness does not consist in doing uncommon things, but in doing everything with purity of heart.—Cardinal Manning.

Murmurings of Spring

"IF YOU'D take a few steps, Sis, I believe I'd be inspired to answer that question, 'Did you ever see a dream walking?' You are nothing less than devastating—truly a menace!"

"You meow so sweetly, Connie. I'm a bit suspicious that this little peplum frock of mine has got you catty. Your eyes really aren't green by rights, you know."

"How could you? I think my dress looks as nice on me as yours does on you. Why practically all of the girls at the Luf-a-Lot last night wanted to know where I found such a lovely frock. Not one of them guessed that I made it myself. And did I feel elegant when I played Mendelssohn's Spring Song on Diane's new baby grand! The girls said I fit into the picture perfectly. I thought if only Dwight could see me now."

"I still say my two-piece with its piped peplum, cute little buttons and stream-lines is the No. 1 spring outfit in this woman's town."

Mother Happens Along.
"Girls, girls, if your talk were only half as pretty as your frocks you'd be better off. Sometimes I wonder if you wouldn't be more appropriately titled The Check Twins, rather than The Chic Twins."

"Okay, Mother, you win. Let's change the subject by changing clothes. We'll put on our culottes and join you in a round of golf, how's that? Gee, Mother, you never look sweeter than when you're wearing a casual young two-piece shirt dress. The plaid pique is just the thing for you, too. In fact, Mom, you're just about tops from any angle."

FARMERS' COLUMN

THE FARM AND HOME

One way to increase the use of vegetables by members of the family is to grow more kinds in the home garden. When the average garden contains only a half dozen vegetables, it should include at least a dozen, and many more kinds could be grown.

Pillows can be washed without removing the feathers. Soak them in lukewarm water, or put them in a washing machine. After rinsing several times in warm water, hang them on a line in the sun and wind. It is better to remove feathers from beds before washing.

Care is needed in giving salt to any animal, especially if it has not had salt regularly. Special care is required in the case of hogs, which are rather easily killed with pure salt, brine, or other substances highly salted.

For vegetables, most fertilizers give best results when applied at each side of the row, or around each plant, as in the case of tomatoes. Care is needed to prevent over use of fertilizer in this method, and it should be placed at least two inches from the plants.

Unpainted buildings are usually given two coats of paint, the first being mostly oil and the second regular paint. Two thin coats are better than one thick coat or even two thick coats. Cracked, blistered, or peeling paint should be brushed or scraped from old surfaces.

Black rot and mildew, two of the most troublesome diseases of grapes, may be controlled by spraying with Bordeaux mixture. The first spray is put on when the new growth is about an inch long, another about two weeks later, and a third when the bloom is nearly complete.

Sow More Alfalfa

With nearly 7 percent of their crop land already in alfalfa, Oldham county farmers added large acreages this spring, says County Agent William B. Howell. Several farmers sowed 20 to 40 acres each. Mr. Howell believes the county should have three times as much alfalfa as it now has, although it is one of the largest orchard grass counties in the state.

Pigs Big in Short Time

Twelve hogs that averaged 206 pounds when sold at the age of 168 days is the record made by Eugene Shuffett, a Green county farmer. County Agent H. H. Dickerson points out that they were raised on clean ground. The ration for the first two thirds of the feeding period consisted of corn, wheat middlings, and skim-milk. During the latter part of the period tankage was substituted for milk.

Cleanup Campaign

Under the leadership of their home demonstration agent, Mary Lou Jackson, members of homemakers' clubs in Ballard county have sponsored cleaning up 140 home grounds, the fertilizing of 50 lawns, and the establishment of five demonstration rose gardens. Each demonstration garden will have at least five kinds of roses. Parent-teacher associations and the homemakers clubs are cooperating in the landscaping of school grounds, and plan eventually to beautify all public grounds and roadsides in the county.

Rural Life Sunday

Rural life Sunday this year falls on May 2, and will be observed throughout Kentucky and the nation, with special programs in town and country churches and some city churches. In Kentucky, observance of rural life Sunday is sponsored by the Rural Church Council, the state organization working in behalf of better town and country churches.

From the Memorial building on the campus of the university of Kentucky at Lexington will be broadcast a special radio program from 8:30 to 9 a. m., central time. The speaker will be Hon. Frederick A. Wallis of Paris, state commissioner of public welfare. Special music for the occasion will be furnished by the university of Kentucky chorists directed by Miss Mildred Lewis. The radio program may be heard over WHAS.

This will be the eighth year that rural life Sunday has been observed in Kentucky.

SAVE THE FORESTS

Six men have entered pleas of guilty to charges of negligence in starting forest fires while burning new ground and brush during the past week, was the announcement today made by R. F. Hemingway, supervisor of the Cumberland national forest.

Those convicted were James Stewart and Arthur Mullins, of Powell county; John R. Phillips, Rowan county; Henry French, Rockcastle county; and Laurence Stapleton and Roscoe Proffitt of Menifee county. Two of the men were each given a fine of $10 and costs, and four cases were continued generally.

Although the forest fire situation on the Cumberland national forest is not as acute as was the case last year, the forest service has already fought nearly 80 fires since January 1. This improvement can be explained to a large degree by the splendid spirit of cooperation shown by many residents of the forest in fire prevention by reporting when they intend to burn and by using care with fire while in forest areas.

"Law enforcement is necessary and will be used to the fullest extent in the reduction of fires caused thru willfulness or negligence. Last year's total of 256 incendiary fires on the Cumberland national forest is some indication of the necessity for this type of forest fire prevention," said Mr. Hemingway.

Voters of Madison county will go to the polls on May 18 to decide whether the sale, barter, or lending of spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors containing more than 1 percent of alcohol by volume shall be legal within its borders. The Post is taking no sides in this matter. It is not attempting to advise its readers whether it would be better for Madison county to vote for local option. It is of the opinion that certain county officials who are reported to have told dry leaders that they favor the local option cause and then told those opposing local option that they favor retaining the system of legal sale of liquor, should make up their minds. It is the duty of every home loving American citizen to obey and uphold the law. To countenance lawlessness, to be indifferent to the law by individual, party, or clique, threatens the safety of every good citizen, his wife, children, or others dear to him or her.

Forget party politics, think of your neighbor, yourself, and those dear to you. Elect men who are honest and conscientious, who have backbone enough to stand up for what they know is right. Crooked politicians, shyster lawyers, dishonest judges, and men in high political offices who prostitute the law are ruinous to county, state, or national government. Criminal acts have been whitewashed by judges and other executive officials. The time is coming when the good, honest, God fearing citizens will rise in their might and crush these dastards, but much bloodshed will follow and many innocent people will be sacrificed together with the criminals.—Walton Advertiser.

EXPERT LEANERS

My grandfather was an expert mathematician. My grandmother did splendid embroidery. Grandfather used to use his mathematical skill in estimating stitches and thread lengths in Grandmother's embroidery work. He once picked the leaves off one limb on an apple tree and calculated the number of leaves on the entire tree. He could figure in his head the day of the week of any date in remote history.

When Grandfather and Grandmother came to live with us, we had to provide room for Grandmother's embroidery and provide paper for Grandfather to figure on. When we had visitors, at the first lull in the conversation Grandmother got out samples of her work. Grandfather spent 20 years in our home feeling superior because he could figure. Both Grandfather and Grandmother were experts.

So many experts I have known have moved in with relatives. I do not know the answer.

ROB JONES' COMMENTS

No man has reached true greatness until he is able to stand alone on the side of right. It is easy to go with the crowd. It takes courage, faith, and true greatness, to walk alone on the path of right with the mass of people disapproving and condemning. Great souls have always been lonely. Jesus was lonely. He came to His world which He Himself had made and His world would not receive Him. He gathered about Him His own disciples and they left Him alone and slept while He suffered. Jesus was approachable. The magnetism of His divine personality drew wicked women of the underworld as well as religious leaders and men of culture. He had a power that caused little children to crowd about Him. Yet men did not understand Him. Some day every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that He is the Son of God and the divinely appointed King. He is the Heir of all things. All things were made by Him and for Him. "All hail the power of Jesus' Name!"

"Why do some men around the age of fifty seem to lose their moral stamina and go off at a tangent?" the writer inquired of an old physician several years ago. "Many men about the age of fifty have reached their goal in life and have no forward look, so they turn to indiscretion for stimulation," the old doctor replied. What a pity some men lose the forward look! I have just returned from Florida. The happiest people I saw were old people. Old age should be the happiest time in life for a Christian. If we have faith in God and the future, why should we worry? Beyond the gold of the sunset is the gold of the city streets, the gates of pearl, the walls of jasper, the crystal fountains, the cloudless sky, and everlasting youth, and there is no sighing and no crying and no dying.

"If it were not so I would have told you." That is what Jesus said to His disciples when their hearts were sad. In other words, Jesus said, "I am going away to prepare a home for you. When the home is ready I will come back again and receive you unto Myself. If it were not so I would have told you." In other words, "You can depend on Me. I would not deceive you. I would not stir hope in your heart and then dash that hope. I would not cause you to dream dreams that cannot come true. I would not create longings that will never be satisfied. You need have no doubt. You can count on Me." I wonder if the promises of Jesus are real to those who read these lines? Do you wonder sometimes if the thing is so? Jesus was no madman. He was no wild dreamer. He was not a sinner. He never deceived. He would not permit us to be deceived by refusing to give us the facts. His disciples asked Him one time, "Wilt thou at this time restore the kingdom of Israel?" He said to them, "It is not for you to know the time or season. This is a secret locked in my Father's bosom." Evidently the disciples understood that some day the kingdom would be returned to Israel. It is not reasonable to suppose that Jesus would have left them under that impression if the impression was wrong. Jesus would not tell us that He is coming again to take us to a prepared home if it were not true. "If it were not so I would have told you."

LOCAL NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Adams and little daughter Norma Jean spent Sunday at Caney with Mr. Adams' brother and family.

Sam Franklin feels quite important since Saturday, April 10, when a little son made his appearance in their home. His title is Jerry Rudolph.

Mrs. Edgar Wells and daughters Alma Joyce and Laura Jean, who had been visiting at Stacy Fork, returned home Thursday. The little girls are recovering from whooping cough.

Harris Howard of White Oak, aged 79, had a stroke of paralysis a few days ago. He is in a serious condition and his son, Woodford, is taking him to Huntington today. He will bring his brother Bernard home. Mr. Howard is improving slowly. There was a rising on his knee and his leg has been in a cast.

S. C. Farmer Makes 12 1/2 Bales Of Lint Cotton On 5 Acres

Unusually High Yield Wins State Prize

P. M. Arant, of Pageland, S. C., made the unusually high yield of 12 1/2 bales of lint cotton on five acres, winning a $275.00 cash prize in the 1936 S. C. state-wide contest, in addition to making a net profit of nearly $1,000.00 for the cotton. His staple pulled 1-1/32 inch. Because of his high quality yield, Mr. Arant's production methods are worthy of note. After preparing the land well, Mr. Arant planted in rows thirty-four inches apart. He applied 400 pounds of fertilizer analyzing 8% phosphoric acid, 6% Nitrogen and 5% potash. This was bedded upon ahead of planting. After the cotton was chopped he applied 280 pounds of Arcadian Nitrate of Soda per acre as a side-dresser, along with the same amount of muriate of potash. He planted Coker's Cleve-Wilt strain 4 variety.

BOARD EXPRESSES SORROW

The following resolution was adopted by the Morgan county board of education with an increasing sense of the loss suffered through the passing of Dr. E. C. Gevedon.

The Morgan county board of education desires thus to record its deep sorrow at the death of Dr. E. C. Gevedon, who for many years rendered medical service to the people of Morgan county. His rare skill and understanding, and the unselfishness which enhanced these attributes, made a fundamental and lasting contribution to his county, and aided largely in providing medical aid and care for all the people, especially on the east side of the county. To his wife and family is extended our sincerest sympathy, and the hope that our appreciation of his unusual service may, in some measure, lighten the burden of their bereavement.

The board of education very deeply regrets the sudden and untimely death of Victor Gevedon, the son of Dr. E. C. Gevedon, and to his wife, Mrs. Corrine Gevedon, we extend our sincerest sympathy.

Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this organization and that a copy be sent to Mrs. E. C. Gevedon and family as a testimonial of our sincere appreciation of his usefulness not only as a member of the medical profession but also as one of Morgan county's most outstanding citizens.

WILL ATTEND DEDICATION

Louisville, Ky., April 8, 1937
Ova O. Haney, Superintendent,
Morgan County Schools,
West Liberty, Kentucky.

Dear Professor:
Certainly want to thank you for your very kind invitation of April 1 to attend your dedication of this very important WPA project and to assure you that we hope to be present at that time.

We wish to congratulate you and your people on the completion of this project. It will long stand as a monument to the sound judgment and wise discretion of yourself and your fellow citizens and to our government in the construction thereof. We feel that you are to be particularly congratulated on having on your program Mrs. Roosevelt, not alone because of her charm and ability as a speaker, but also because of her outstanding interest in human relationship and in the bettering of the conditions of other people. Mrs. Roosevelt is unquestionably one of the outstanding, if not the leading, American woman of today.

With best wishes for your continued success and congratulations on your leadership, we remain
Very cordially yours,
LORENZO K. WOOD,
State Director, N.E.C.

NECESSITY OF EDUCATION

Perhaps it is out of my field to discuss the question of education, not having been connected directly with educational work; however, my work along the social line has led me to study the effects of education upon the individual.

Primarily, education has a two-fold purpose: equipping the individual for a livelihood and its cultural value in enriching the personality.

In this age of specialization and keen competition, a technical training is necessary for success in any given profession. It is the duty of the educator to include in the curriculum of schools and colleges such courses as to fit the student to better prepare for the work of his chosen profession. More attention is now being given to high school students in helping them select courses that will be beneficial in their life's work.

Every person has ample time for the study and appreciation of the fine arts and the things that tend to the cultural side of life.

If our education has been such as to include a study of the fine arts, we will consequently have a greater

A Progressive School Program

There are at present a few people who believe that the type of education they received a few decades ago is good enough for their children. Only a few years ago the teacher who had a fair knowledge of the three R's was considered a good teacher.

Will the type of instruction received in the rural schools a few decades ago prepare the child of today to find his proper place in this changing civilization of ours? The answer is no. He must be trained socially and academically to find his proper place in society, and then become a part of that society.

Those who are interested in the educational growth of our county believe that today as much or more progress is being made in Morgan county than in any other county of the state.

What town can boast of a more modern school plant than is being erected and nearing completion than can the town of West Liberty?

What county can boast of better school plants than those under construction at Cannel City, Wrigley, and Crockett?

In addition to these, various other schools are being, or will be in the near future, constructed.

West Liberty by the beginning of the fall term in September will have one of the most modern equipped buildings of any town in the state. In terms of dollars, the building fully equipped will have an estimated value of approximately one half million dollars. Its advantages to the youth of Morgan county is unestimable.

A program of consolidation is well under way in Morgan county, and in only a brief period of time the schools located on or near the highways will be converted into consolidated schools with school buses making transportation possible for all pupils.

Today our high schools are operated on the 6-6 plan, not on the old 8-4 plan as practiced a few years ago. Under the 6-6 plan the seventh and eighth grades have become an integral part of the high school, making it possible for the pupils of those grades to receive the same attention as do pupils of the senior high school.

Like those of the senior high, teachers of the junior high must be graduates of approved colleges or universities, or at least meet the equivalent of graduation.

The one agency that has probably done more than any other to make education possible for many pupils is the NYA (national youth administration) program. This program has been designed particularly to enable appreciation of their value in making life fuller and better.

To know something of the history of mankind and the various stages of culture thru which civilization has passed in its development, we can more fully appreciate our position in society.

Every human mind is a potential gem, a diamond in the rough, that needs the polishing touch of education to bring out its true luster and brilliancy so the personality as a separate human entity will be of a greater value to society.

According to reports of the helping teachers, more progress is being made in the rural schools than ever before.

A good motto is: a trained teacher in every school. Teachers are becoming better qualified each year. More interest is being manifested by the teachers in extra-curricular activities and many rural schools have begun an elaborate physical education program. Practically every rural school has made some effort to purchase books and available reading material for the library.

Our building program alone is sufficient evidence that Morgan county is one of the leading progressive counties of the state.

If Morgan county is experiencing an educational renaissance, what has brought it about?

Progress in any field of endeavor is brought about by great leaders, men who have a desire to promote and elevate the standards under which they live.

Who is responsible for the educational program now outlined for Morgan county? In brief, this question can be answered by saying that the county superintendent and the county board of education, working together, are responsible.

Morgan county should be considered fortunate to have at the head of its school system a progressive, alert young man like Supt. Haney. Mr. Haney has a vision for a greater program for his county.

But the county superintendent alone can do but little. He must have the wholehearted cooperation of the members of his board. Undoubtedly the present school board is the most progressive and cooperative board Morgan county has ever had. As long as we have men of this type to direct our educational activities there is no reason why progress should not be made.

To the teachers of Morgan county, may I ask that you work toward a bigger and better program for the schools of your county, lay aside petty grievances, and remember that the program now under formation is bigger than any position that exists.

As teachers, we should have a code of ethics, grow professionally, and have the interest of the entire county at heart, and not any one particular job or position.

W. L. CARPENTER,
Prin. Morgan Co. High School.

NURSERY SCHOOL REPORT

April 12, 1937
Mrs. Nova Motley,
West Liberty, Kentucky.

Dear Mrs. Motley:
I am in receipt of your report for the nursery school, February 21 to March 20. I am pleased to note that you and your supervisor had an opportunity to visit the Mt. Sterling nursery school.

I feel sure that the contributions received from Mr. Benton will be of great help to you. I trust that it will be possible for him to continue such contributions as often as he is able.

Your parent education work sounds most interesting. I am delighted that you realize that this phase of the nursery school work is essential if the school is to continue successfully.

May I take this opportunity to compliment the work which is being done by your nurse. Her report always indicates a genuine interest in the conditions of the children as well as the parents from whose homes they come.

I am looking forward to seeing you and your staff at the K.E.A. in Louisville.

Very truly yours,
JANE R. SHELBY, State Nursery Supervisor, WPA education program of the state department of education.

P.T.A. PRESIDENTS

The Parent-Teachers association since its organization has selected with care its president and other officers. It has been led and guided by women of intelligence, public spirited women, who sought to serve the association in promoting the very best interests of the boys and girls of the community. They have been Christians, standing for high ideals and for an environment that will promote the very best morals and build character.

The association has just reelected a president of this type, Mrs. C. K. Stacy served the Parent-Teachers association wisely and impartially. She has selected her committees carefully so as to give everyone a chance to work.

Our president is a friend to the poor, to all alike. She stands for progress in the school, for good teachers, for unquestionable morals, for a high type of education, which will develop high type boys and girls, physically, mentally and morally. She is not ashamed to own Christ as her Guide.

A MOTHER

Mrs. Robert Cole and sons Bobby and Billy, of Lancaster, and Mrs. C. W. Mathis of Grays Knob came in Wednesday and visited their folks at the Cole hotel until Saturday.

1937 Ford V-8

● If you think that "all low-price cars cost about the same" — forget it! They don't.

Ford makes a car — a 60-horsepower economy Ford V-8 — that sells from 30 to 60 dollars under the prices asked for any other car of comparable size. The lowest Ford prices in years!

Check delivered prices in your town and see for yourself.

● Of course, first cost doesn't prove "low cost" — you must consider operating cost also.

The "60" has definitely established itself as the most economical car in Ford history. Ford cars have been famous for economy for 34 years, so that means something!

Owners who have driven it thousands of miles report that the Ford "60" averages between 22 and 27 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

You can prove those figures — on the open road — in a car provided by the nearest Ford dealer.

● When you've finished your personal check-up, ask yourself:

"Do I want to save money the day I buy my car and every mile I drive it?"

"Do I want a safe, roomy, comfortable car of advanced design — created from the finest materials to the highest precision standards?"

There's only one answer, of course — the 1937 Ford V-8.

Ford V-8 $529 at Dealership. Prices include transportation charges, title and federal tax. This price is for the 60-horsepower Coupe equipped with front and rear bumpers, spare tire, horn, windshield wiper, sun visor, glove compartment, and ash tray.

$25 A MONTH, after usual down-payment, lease any Ford V-8 Car from any Ford dealer anywhere in the U. S. — through Authorized Ford Finance Plans of Universal-Credit Co.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

WHEN a man goes after his collar button, a lady had better mind her frills and fripperies. Or they'll be scattered all over the place.

Of course it's quite the style among people who take their style very seriously for a husband and wife to have separate rooms. Which is all right if you can spare the space and want to preserve your mystery.

But there's a lot to be said for the sweet every-dayness of marriage. After all, some women look their best in their tangled moments, and some men are very debonair with their lather. So if by choice or necessity, you share a room with your spouse, the main recipe is to make it really joint in mood as well as fact.

That's not always so easy—at least from the looks of it—rooms of this kind are either too feminine or else they'll be positively clinical in their austerity. But one couple we know have succeeded in making their bedroom comfortable and becoming to both of them. It's rather a large room to begin with—and what's more than a spacious big bedroom? Sarah selected wall paper in very pale yellow with white flowers so that the effect is rather of an ivory or subtle neutral. The furniture is mahogany, with a massive old poster bed as the main piece. This has a firmly bodied crocheted spread in white, appropriate, decorative and yet "sittable," and the white is repeated in the curtains which are marquisette and made with seven inch ruffles that fall very softly. An easy chair for him and a chaise longue for her are both upholstered in cocoa brown moire. The rug is a misty patterned design in two shades of light green, and most of the accessories in the room are white. Sarah's dressing table has a simple white marquisette skirt with tailored bows of green and brown velvet ribbon tied together . . . bows like these also serve as tie backs for the curtains, and there aren't any draperies.

It's not a dramatic room . . . they didn't want it to be. But it has a substantial charm about it, and you can see at a glance that it's a room that both He and She enjoy living in. Which is what decorating is all about anyway.

Sociable Kitchens.

We are all up in arms when we hear anyone make a slur—remark about kitchens, or kitchen work for that matter. Because kitchens are pleasantly sociable if you give them half a chance. And if you don't believe us, read Dickens or Kathleen Norris for descriptions of gay kitchens.

It's fun to have impromptu parties in the kitchen—after the movie snacks . . . Sunday night suppers . . . old time candy pulls. They're very simple if you do a little thinking ahead. One problem is the matter of places to sit. If the kitchen is big enough, be sure to have at least one rocking chair. And benches that slide under the table between times are useful every day as well as for parties. If you need more table area than you have room for, have a shelf table on hinges along the wall that folds down when not in use.

Have festive ware for kitchen serving too—a very brilliant pottery tea set and cookie jar to match, or some of that spun aluminum and walnut buffet service ware is very good for kitchen entertaining.

An easy way to make the kitchen look more partified is to take the glass or wood doors off your cupboards, paint the insides as well as the shelves in some very bright color, and then repeat this bright color in oilcloth covers for the tables and pads for chairs.

Another notion we have is that a kitchen is more genial looking when the pots and pans are hanging up where you can see them. Certainly they're handier that way if they're near the stove.

NUTS, LEGUMES GIVE VITAMIN B

Combination Will Enhance Protein Value of Dish.

By EDITH M. BARBER

ALTHOUGH naturally we go to the animal kingdom for a large part of our supply of muscle-building food which is scientifically known as protein, the vegetable kingdom will also contribute to our daily needs. Nuts and vegetables, such as beans, peas and lentils, which are called legumes, supply us with liberal amounts of this important element in good nutrition. We also find worthwhile amounts in cereals.

Nuts are not unlike meat in content, because they are high in both protein and fat. They vary as far as their mineral content is concerned, as some are well supplied and others contain little. The legumes are higher in protein and lower in fat. Instead of the fat, they contribute carbohydrates. Both nuts and legumes have a high caloric value. The latter as well furnish important amounts of minerals. Both nuts and legumes will give us vitamin B. The addition of nuts to vegetable dishes will add protein and flavor.

Legumes used in such dishes as baked beans, split pea soup, black or white bean soup and in other ways make satisfying dishes.

Lentils, Mecklenburg Style.

1 cup lentils
1 quart water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup diced salt pork
1/2 cup minced onion
1/2 cup diced celery
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup vinegar
1/4 cup water
Pepper

Wash lentils and soak several hours in water. Add the salt and cook in the same water until tender, about one hour. Fry the salt pork in a skillet until crisp and delicately brown; add the onions and the celery and cook three minutes. Sprinkle this mixture with the flour and stir until well mixed. Drain the lentils and add with the vinegar, water and pepper to the salt pork mixture. Heat well and serve as a luncheon or supper dish.

Split Pea Soup.

1/2 pound split peas
3 cups beef stock
Salt, pepper
1 bay leaf
1 sprig parsley
1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon butter
1 large onion, grated
Chopped parsley

Soak the peas overnight, drain, add stock and seasonings and simmer about two hours. Press through a sieve, return to saucepan. Rub flour and butter together and stir into the soup, stirring constantly. Cook for five minutes and serve with a sprinkling of grated onion and minced parsley on top.

Black Bean Soup.

1 cup black beans
1 1/2 quarts water
1 sliced onion
1/4 pound salt pork
6 cloves
2 bay leaves
1 stalk celery
Salt, pepper
Sliced lemon
Hard-cooked egg
Sherry

Soak beans overnight. Add water, onion, salt pork, cloves, bay leaves, celery and salt and pepper and simmer until beans are soft. Add more water if necessary. Press through a coarse sieve, add enough water to give desired consistency, reheat and serve with sliced lemon, sliced hard-cooked egg and sherry.

Creamed Onions With Chestnuts.

1/2 pound chestnuts
1 teaspoon butter
2 pounds boiled onions
2 cups white sauce, well seasoned

Cut a cross in chestnuts and shake with butter in a frying pan over the fire for five minutes. Remove shells, skin and slice. Heat onions in white sauce, add chestnuts, reheat and serve.

Nut and Date Muffins.

1/4 cup shortening
1/4 cup sugar
1 egg
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1/2 cup sliced nuts
1/2 cup cut dates

Cream shortening, stir in sugar, and add beaten egg. Mix and sift together flour, salt, and baking powder and add alternately with the milk. Add nuts and dates which have been dredged in flour. Pour into well greased muffin pans and bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven, (375 degrees Fahrenheit).

Pea Soup.

3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon minced onion
3 tablespoons flour
3 cups milk
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1 can peas
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Melt the butter, add the onion and cook one minute. Stir in the flour, add the milk, salt and pepper and stir over fire until thickened. Cook one minute. Add the peas which have been cooked in their liquor until very tender and then rubbed through a sieve. Add the nutmeg and heat.

"Not a concession on your part, Emery, do not forget that, but an emergency which overtook us, and your mother's welcome was a loophole through which you crawled—how much to my shame I never dreamed until I felt her arms about me. One thing more, do you intend to drive that car yourself? You may have forgotten that some weeks ago Brown asked for two days' absence at Christmas to be with his family."

Eleanor snappy, Eleanor sitting in judgment upon him—Emery was astounded. "More demoralization! Yes, I had quite forgotten Brown," he said. "I will get a special man from the garage, for it promises to be too cold for me to undertake so long for Eleanor, after all, it might be done without a chauffeur, for Darrow is taking up some painting truck for a week's stay at his home, and he was fussing so about its transportation that I've asked him to join us."

"Very well, I will be ready—but, oh! Emery, please, please, do not let anything prevent your coming, or make you late; I don't think I could bear it."

"How absurd, Eleanor. Do you think me purposely irresponsible? There is no use in being hysterical in advance, for if I expected to be detained I should most certainly have asked you to take the train."

With so much to be done, it would seem that the days following would have passed so long for Eleanor, but instead they dragged along shod in lead. The trunks were to be ready early on the morning of the twenty-third, and, as the maid came in to finish the packing, Eleanor bade her leave one particular trunk—that she wished to pack personally.

Spreading all the things upon the floor, Eleanor knelt beside them, fingering the trunk lid with an almost caressing touch as she opened it. It was a wide, shallow affair with a single tray, and on the ends were stamped the initials of her girlhood. In a flash her mind flew back ten years to the day when, kneeling in the same way, she had packed this same trunk for her wedding journey, her uncle-father half playful, half tearful, standing beside her. Why did her hands tremble so? It almost seemed as if this time she was preparing for an equally important journey, but from which there was to be no happy return. In her absorption she looked up through big tears that hung to her lashes, half expecting to see her father there once more, but it was The Stranger who had packed the trunk of the old open door, when she had thought that he was writing letters in Vance's den.

"Tired, my child, and lonely also because the children are away?" he asked, his voice clinging tenderly to the words as he stooped to lift her to her feet to a chair. Then he closed the trunk and looking it handed her the key.

Strangely thrilled, yet soothed, by his touch, Eleanor sat, half crouching and dumb, her hands clasped, until as he continued standing before her as if expecting her to speak she raised her eyes to meet his.

"After first youth goes, is there any such thing as real love, the whole love as it is in the beginning, between husband and wife, is there any one in the whole world who is perfectly happy?" Eleanor asked the questions in a measured tone, as lacking in emotion as if she was inquiring the time of day.

For a moment The Stranger did not answer, but shifted the letters between his hands as if they were his only thought.

"Your second question may be answered by a legend. I met with it in the remotest mountains of Montana's country, where it doubtless was related long ago by the Mission priests until in many forms it has passed from tribe to tribe until it has become as the truth. Back in the days when the Man of Sorrows, Manitou's own son, walked the earth to banish death and sorrow, a woman came to him carrying her dead child and, knowing that he could work miracles, begged him to give it life. Crying out and saying: 'Master, no one in the whole world is so desolate and sad as I.' Quietly he replied: 'Before I may do that which you ask, go forth and bereave evening bring me pounded maize from a tribe where there has been no death.'

"The woman set out and all the day went from tent to tent, seeking the maize, but night fell and she had not found it. Then, returning she bowed her head and said: 'Master, I understand.'

"As for love, Eleanor, heart-rooted married love, it does not die with youth, but grows stronger with the years, even as the tree is stronger than the sapling. Yet oftentimes when love ceases his first impetuous boyish clamor, through carelessness he is shut out, then the Gate of Understanding is the only way for his return."

Eleanor's head drooped lower and lower, until she hid her face with her arm.

"It seems that I was born to loneliness," she whispered half to herself, half to The Stranger. "My mother was unhappy also, for my father grew estranged and went away, no one knew where, and died far off, before he even knew that I was born, and, though I've often thought and read about him, I do not even know his face, for there is no picture."

"How do I know all this? It is written in this little red book that my mother left to talk to me in her place, when she knew that she must go. See this is mother's." And Eleanor drew from her waist an oval locket that held a miniature portrait done on ivory.

As she spoke in broken sentences, hesitating as if uncertain in choosing her words, The Stranger suddenly strode toward her, stretching out his arms, then as quickly dropped them at his sides, while his words rushed from his lips in a new tone fraught with such a note of human passion, that she was startled and shaken as by an electric storm.

"You are not single in your agony, Eleanor." Then the voice, though clear, dropped as if for only her inner self to hear, "Nor do you yet know the keenest suffering. To be misunderstood is cruel, but to misunderstand love and never know the truth until the gate is forever closed, that is the very depth!"

CHAPTER VII

The twenty-fourth of December! Eleanor looked at the calendar confronting her from its silver frame on the top of her writing desk; looked long and steadily at the numerals printed heavily in red that marked the next day. What was it that had come over her? It seemed to her that she was being drawn toward some crisis in her life.

Now as then she had set everything in order, freed her desk drawers of litter, burned old letters, tying and sealing in a packet a few that it seemed akin to murder to destroy. Her long fur cloak and other wear for the cold ride, down to the smallest detail, was spread upon her bed, yet it was but eleven o'clock, four hours before it would be time to start.

The telephone rang, once only, but the sound put Eleanor in such a panic that she dared not answer the call lest it might be to say that Emery had changed his plans. "Mr. Darrow will send his things around this morning so that Mr. Vance need not trouble to call for them," was the message brought by the maid.

Then her mind turned to her husband's friend who was also hers, how thoughtful he was always, understanding so many of her joys without the translation of words. How unselfish, how many times during the last two years he had stepped between herself and loneliness, until her husband took his companionship for her as a matter of course, relying upon it as a means of shifting responsibility.

Seated at his office desk Emery Vance was planning for his four days' absence and in doing so borrowed trouble at every turn. He was tired, yes, very tired mentally. It was only during the last hour that this sense of utter fatigue had focused, and the depression thus brought about made him question for the first time since he had set his hand to the money plot if, after all, the brain-racking anxiety brought sufficient reward.

Now he saw that the balance between the two factions of the board of directors, for and against him, was becoming comfortably even. The words of his mother's last letters would blend with those that he was dictating and her face seemed to press close to his, while she tried to draw his head upon her shoulder as she had done in the old days when he had been stirred by boyish disappointment. Then his grip returned and he dictated so fast that the usually tireless Kitty Mack first hesitated, then asked him to repeat.

"That will do for today," he said presently. "Any letters that come on Thursday or Friday must wait until I return unless they are personal and urgent."

"By the way, Miss Mack, here is your Christmas present, next year it will be doubled and after the first of the coming January your salary will be thirty dollars a week instead of twenty-five as at present. It seems to me that you are the only clerk in the office who works conscientiously instead of maneuvering to shirk and who also understands my methods."

Kitty received her check quietly, expressing her thanks so deliberately that Vance, wheeling his chair about, asked in his quick, nervous speech: "Is there anything the matter, have I forgotten to sign it?"

"No, nothing the matter with the check, sir, the trouble is with me. I've been meaning to tell you all the week that I'm going to leave the first of February."

"You? You are going to leave me in the lurch!"

A Few Little Smiles

COMMON PRACTICE

They were a couple of lads from the "upper crust," making an Atlantic crossing on the same liner, but they hadn't been introduced. Consequently, when the ship sank and they found themselves swimming together, neither spoke for several miles.

Finally one of them coughed tentatively. "Er—beg pardon," he began, "do you mind my speaking to you?"

"Not at all," replied the other. "What can I do for you?"

"Well, I'd appreciate it awfully if you'd direct me toward New York."

—Washington Post.

THE HABIT

"Do you think our boy will leave footprints on the sands of time?"

"He'd leave 'em anywhere. Just look out in the hall."

Doggy

A dear old lady entered a shop and said, "I want one of those water bowls labelled 'Dog' please."

The shopkeeper, however, had only plain bowls in stock, and expressed his regret at being unable to meet her wishes.

The old lady, on second thought, agreed to accept a plain bowl, remarking, "After all, the puppies are too young to read."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"No, the tendency today is to belong to Don't Hurry Clubs."

Initiative Not Required

"It is always a mistake to start a quarrel," remarked the cautious friend.

"You don't have to start quarrels these days," answered Senator Sorghum. "You can always find one ready-made whenever you feel like mixing in."

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Frying Eggs—Eggs are less liable to break or stick to the pan if a little flour is added to the frying fat.

For Steamed or Boiled Puddings—Puddings will not stick to the basin if two strips of grease-proof paper are put crosswise in the basin before the mixture is poured in.

New Hot-Water Bottles—Have a little glycerine added to the water with which hot-water bottles are filled for the first time. This will make the rubber supple, and the bottle will last longer.

Removing Stains on Hands—Vegetable stains can be removed from the hands by rubbing them with a slice of raw potato.

Don't Irritate Gas Bloating

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to old poisonous matter in the constipated bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria.

If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable.

You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched, unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED.

Thousands of sufferers have found in Adierka the quick, scientific way to rid their systems of harmful bacteria. Adierka rid you of gas and indigestion, drives out the poisons of the bowels, gives you a REAL cleansing with Adierka. Get rid of GAS. Adierka does not gripe and has no habit forming. HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.

You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER RABBIT'S GLAD SURPRISE.

IT HAD been many days since any of the little people of the Green Forest had seen or heard anything of Mrs. Grouse and all but two or three had made up their minds that Sammy Jay was right and that Farmer Brown's boy really had killed her and eaten her for his dinner. Tommy Tit the Chickadee didn't believe it. Chatterer the Red Squirrel remembered how he had been kept a prisoner and treated ever so kindly by Farmer Brown's boy and he didn't quite believe it.

And Then Mrs. Grouse Walked Out Right in Front of Peter.

Anyway, he had hope that it wasn't so. Peter Rabbit tried not to believe it. But as one day followed another Peter's doubts grew until at last he felt that he almost had to believe it.

Now, all this time Jack Frost had stayed in the Green Forest and on the Green Meadows and kept the icy crust he had made over the snow as hard as ever, which, of course, made it dreadfully hard for the little people who live there and must eat to get enough food. They were hungry most of the time and had to spend every minute that they were awake in hunting for food. Only those who sleep most of the winter didn't mind. But at last Jack should it be? Is there anybody else who looks like me in the Green Forest?" he cried.

"No—no," replied Peter slowly, as if even yet he wasn't quite sure, "only Sammy Jay said that you had been killed and eaten by Farmer Brown's boy—and—"

"And you believe it?" snapped Mrs. Grouse. "I should think that by this time you would have learned never to believe what Sammy Jay says. You ought to know that he's the greatest mischief-maker in the Green Forest. Do I look as if I had been killed and eaten?" Mrs. Grouse ruffled up her feathers and strutted back and forth in front of Peter.

Peter laughed joyously. "Not a bit! Not the least little bit!" he declared. "But where have you been all this time? Do tell me all about it! This is the gladdest surprise I have had for a long time."

Then, Mrs. Grouse told Peter all about how Farmer Brown's boy had taken her home when he found her so weak that she couldn't fly, and looked, very much like the snowshoe tracks of Mrs. Grouse.

Peter felt as if he must be dreaming. He stared and stared and stared. "What's the matter with you, Peter Rabbit? Didn't you ever see my snowshoe tracks before?" asked a voice from under the hemlock tree. And then Mrs. Grouse walked out right in front of Peter.

Peter's big eyes opened wider than ever. "Oh!" he cried. "Is it really and truly you, Mrs. Grouse?" he cried.

"Of course, it is me! Who else

SOUND-PROOFING

UNLESS a house is built to prevent it, sounds will travel through walls and floors to an unpleasant degree. When sound-proofing is wanted, it can best be applied while the house is under construction. In a finished house, sound-proofing is not always possible, because some of the sound is carried through the framework.

An inside wall usually consists of wood studs, to which the plaster or other surfaces are attached on both sides. Some of the sound is carried through the vibration of the parts of the walls between the studs. Packing the spaces in the walls with rock wool or other material will cut down some of the sound, but not all of it. For a greater degree of sound-proofing, a second wall can be built on one side of the offending wall. This consists of studs, to be surfaced with stiff insulating boards, or better yet, with lath and a kind of plaster that absorbs sound waves. This wall should be separated from the main wall by an inch at the closest points; there should be no actual contacts between them. The same idea can be used to reduce noise through a ceiling by the building of a false ceiling that is nowhere in contact with the one above.

Noise through a floor can also be deadened from the upper side by laying stiff insulating boards, and placing a new floor on top. Linoleum is more effective as a sound-deadener than a new floor of wood.

Sound-proofing a door requires the deadening of the sound that passes through the door itself, and also the packing of the joints all around the door with sound-proofing material, such as thick felt. The door can be covered with a sheet of insulating board. Some makes of these boards are especially treated to absorb sound waves. A sheet should be cut to the size of the door, and attached to it by one-inch strips around the edges. Strips of thick felt can be had, suitable for filling the spaces around a door.

Noise may be carried through a house by the heating and water pipes; the click of a water meter, for instance, or noises from an oil burner or a stoker. These noises can be reduced by bracing the pipes to check vibration and by pipe covering.

THE LANGUAGE OF YOUR HAND

By Leicester K. Davis

© Public Ledger, Inc.

PURPOSE has been called the mainspring of progress. But the Master of our destinies has not decreed that progress should be made by each of us in the same manner. Such is clearly indicated by the variety of forefingers which come under the observation of the analyst of hands.

Each forefinger and its type indicates with amazing clearness the way in which its possessor formulates his or her purposes and puts them into action.

The outstanding characteristics of this type are its extremely irregular contour and pronounced inclination toward the second finger. These indicate a high degree of concentration and reflection. While the forefinger of the overcautious type crooks rather than bends toward the second finger, the scholarly type not only bends toward it but almost leans against it throughout its entire length.

When viewed from the back, the scholarly finger has a bony wrinkled look that immediately differentiates it from all other types. The nail of this type may vary, on some forefingers being broad and squared, on others long and narrow. In either case, the nail itself is often found to be ribbed in its structure.

When analyzing a hand with this type of forefinger, you may feel safe in placing its owner as a man or woman who has plenty of sound purpose, but one who puts it to work only after careful study and dissection of all facts relating to a worthwhile objective.
